Bryan's Tour of Indiana.

Improvement of Democratic prospects in Indiana has kept pace with the steadily brightening outlook for Democratic success in New York. The distinct development of the week in the Hoosier State has been the unquestioned influence exerted by Mr. Bryan. He has put life into the campaign and worked decided changes in favor of his party in counties where the "free silver" vote was strongest, and where lukewarm Democrats were most numerous. Democratic observers in the state agree with Chairman Taggart that the chances of a Democratic victory on both the State and National tickets is excellent. The traveling correspondent of the New York Herald, who is now in Indiana, reports that Bryan's speeches have had the effect of solidifying and enthusing the Democrats, and he sends no news less hopeful for Democrats than that the State in his opinion, is still doubtful. "Both parties," he says, "are kept guessing." In conclusion I repeat, New York is the State which will demand and receive the greatest amount of attention during the remaining three weeks of the campaign. It will prove to be the pivotal State once more. "As goes New York so goes the Union."

Last week one Dr. John F. Mackey mysteriously disappeared from Odessa. Some thought that he had gone to the fair while others whispered around that there was a wedding in the air. The latter report was confirmed when the doctor alighted from the train Wednesday night with Mrs. Mackey. He had been united in marriage on October 19 at Chillicothe to Miss Nellie Hopkins, a pretty and popular young lady of Breckenridge.—Odessa Ledger.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank French, daughter and son and Miss Lillian Cunningham of Ritzville, Wash., are in Odessa this week. They are on their way home after a visit to Kentucky and the St. Louis fair. Mrs. French and Miss Cunningham are well known among the older residents here. It is their first visit to old Missouri since they left Odessa with their parents, Elder and Mrs. W. R. Cunningham, fifteen years ago.—Odessa Ledger.

After Senator Cockrell had spoken at Norborne recently a man who had been listening to him approached and said: "I formerly lived in Iowa, and I know you told me the truth about the state in your speech. My taxes in Missouri are just half that I paid in Iowa. I have no doubt about the truth of your statement, and from this on I will vote the Democratic ticket."

A FAMOUS REMEDY

"I cured my cough with German Syrup." He wrote to Dr. G. G. Green: "As true as I tell you, doctor dear, I'm feeling finer than ever I've been!"

The poor consumptive should not be the victim of experiment, as he often is, but the moment the dread disease manifests its presence he should be given Bo-schee's German Syrup—a pure, non-alcoholic medicine that is made specially for the cure of consumption, and has a worldwide fame as a certain remedy for catarrh, colds, coughs, croup, sore throat and all bronchial affections in old and young. It is sold in all civilized countries, and has been famous as a consumption cure for almost half a century.

FAILURES IN BUSINESS.

Only One Out of a Hundred Firms a Year for a Period of Thirty-Seven Years.

Who was originally responsible for the statement that 95 per cent. of people going into business ultimately fail, it is impossible to say, says the Mercantile Review, but one frequently hears the statement repeated, especially in addresses before business men's conventions and in speeches at dinners of commercial organizations. Other misstatements are corrected, other myths die out, but this one persists. Recently the hoary old humbug received a bad whack, a solar plexus blow, that should send it down "for the count."

The stroke was dealt by Dun's weekly circular in response to the query of a correspondent whether it is true that 95 per cent. of business men fail. The Dun agency people looked into the matter. They studied the statistics of failures since 1857, and they found that the records show that the ratio of failures in business between 1866 and 1903, inclusive, averaged only a little over one per cent. each year, that is one out of every hundred firms in business failed. The ratio exceeded 1 per cent. during the years of hard times, from 1875 to 1878, inclusive, and again from 1893 to 1898; but of the 38 years between 1866 and 1903 there were 19 years when the ratio slightly exceeded one per cent., and 19 years in which it was slightly less than one per cent.

This showing does not reveal exactly how many of those who enter business ultimately fail, for the number of firms and individuals entering business every year, and the number of those voluntarily retiring from business, would have to be known in order to get the figures exact; but it is very evident that the old delusion of 95 per cent. of business men failing has no foundation in fact.

GOOD FAIRY OF THE MINERS

Electric Ore-Finder Used Very Successfully in Locating Minerals in England.

The electrical ore finder is rapidly proving himself to be the good fairy of the miner. It has located long-lost copper lodes at Coniston, it has found lead in Wales and copper in Cornwall; Australia is using it for gold prospecting, and Mexico has demanded that it shall be sent there to seek for gold, silver and copper, says the London Express.

Its finest work so far as England is concerned is its discovery of new hematite deposits in the Barrow district.

For a long time the hematite output in the district has been declining seriously. In a few years in the case of one company alone it has dropped from 16,000 to 2,000 tons a week. Hundreds of workmen had been thrown out of work, and the decreased output meant an increase in imported ore. The companies concerned tried their utmost to tap fresh sources of supply, spent large sums in sinking shafts and in boring operations, but without success. Then the Barrow Hematite and Steel company called in the electric ore-finder, and the discovery was made.

The story of the find was told to a representative of the St. James' Gazette by Andrew Anderson, the chairman of the company which owns the finder.

"Very soon after the finder had been set at work," he said, "it indicated the presence of hematite in large quantities. Boring operations were begun and before the work had proceeded very far the hematite formation was struck."

"At a little greater depth we came upon limestone. Now it had been the practice in previous operations to stop boring when the limestone was reached, as it was considered improbable that there was any hematite underneath. Boring, however, was continued and hematite was struck within a few feet of the depth the instruments indicated."

All the companies round Barrow intend to take the matter up, and Mr. Anderson thinks that it is quite possible that England will be able to supply itself with all the hematite it needs.

COLLECTIONS AT CHURCH.

Instructions Regarding the Contribution Box for the Ostentatious Giver.

We are frequently asked regarding the best manner of dropping money into the contribution box at church, says the Canadian Churchman, and, carefully considering the subject, we suggest the following rules:

First, if you feel particularly mean, and have only a penny to bestow, you must keep it well covered in your hand, and when the box is under your nose you must, with a quick, nervous motion, let your mite fall so that it shall escape observation.

Second, if you have a quarter or any other silver coin of a considerable size to give, you may hold it in plain sight between your forefingers, and when you deposit it you must let it drop from a comparatively lofty elevation, so that it may make a musical jingle when it reaches its destination.

Thirdly, if you contemplate offering a bill you must not take the money out of your vest pocket until the happy time comes when your neighbor can best see your unparalleled generosity. The moment the collector appears at the pew is the time when you must fumble your money, and then, having methodically unfolded the bill, and put on your eye-glasses to ascertain its denomination, you may slowly place it on the top of the box.

These three rules, we believe, will be sufficient for all ordinary purposes.

Healthy Community.

It is said that the healthiest community in the world is in the mountains of east Tennessee. Physicians are not permitted to charge fees for services. They are paid by the municipality, each resident, well or ill, being taxed a small sum to make up a fund for respectable salaries. Their incomes being thus guaranteed, it is not to the interest of these doctors to keep patients under treatment, hence everybody is well.

Kinloch Paint at the World's Fair.

Caldwell & Drake, the builders of the Agricultural Palace at St. Louis, the largest building in the world, write:

"We are using 'KINLOCH PAINT' on all our work and find it entirely satisfactory."

Caldwell & Drake are also the builders of the Horticultural Building, the "Irish Village", four State buildings and other World's Fair structures, aggregating over a million dollars. They are builders of the new Arkansas and West Virginia State Capitols, the $1,000,000 hotel at West Baden and numerous other public buildings.

Such a firm is particular about the paint it uses; their work requires particular paint. Their specifications demand the best materials and the most workmanlike labor of skilled artisans. When they use "KINLOCH" on all their work and pronounce it "entirely satisfactory", it stamps it as thoroughly good, dependable paint, the paint you want on your own home.

"KINLOCH" is not a high priced paint, although it is a high grade one, and it wears longer than any other paint in the market and looks well all the time. Made in all the standard colors.

Our local agent will tell you why you can not afford to use any other paint. The price he will quote you will be surprisingly satisfactory.
